

EDITORIAL COMMENT

This is the second issue of Crescent University Law Journal. I am glad to be able to establish the foundation for sustenance of the journey started by Professor A. Toriola Oyewo (my predecessor as Dean of Law, Crescent University) in 2016 when he worked with the Editorial Committee to ensure the birth of the journal.

There are ten papers in this second issue of the Journal and it is a testimony to our determination to continue making treasured contributions to scholarship and professional learning in the law profession. Areas of law covered include company law, corporate governance issues, jurisprudence, digital technology, public international law, matrimonial causes, tort, arbitration, energy management, human rights, adoption, and foster care.

We are grateful to all the authors of these articles, the anonymous external assessors and paper reviewers who have demonstrated consistency in supporting us to ensure that we continue to improve the quality of the journal. It is my pleasure to also acknowledge my debt of gratitude to my colleague Mrs. Jaleelah Fehintola Idris, our Publications Manager who proof-read the manuscripts and worked tirelessly with the graphics folks and printers to ensure effective quality control and error free product.

The views expressed in the journal are those of authors of the articles, and not necessarily those of the Editor-in-Chief, Editorial Committee, or the publisher.
